Billie Eilish DITCHES her trademark baggy clothes for a form fitting set

Written by Carly Wolfe

The well-known singer and fashion icon has spoken out against body shamers when photographed last week in tight clothes and not her usual oversize and baggy garments -- Fans RUSHED to her defense.....

Billie Eilish was captured in an all nude colored tight outfit while out and about in LA. These images circulated fast around the internet, even though she tried to remain low profile, she is hard to miss with bright neon green hair...

Eilish has been to a countless number of award shows and big star studded in oversized baggy garments that do not show off her body type.

Last year, when asked by Forbes Magazine why she does not wear clothes that accent her body, she answered "It's kind of gives nobody the opportunity to judge what your body looks like. I want layers and layers and layers, and I want to be mysterious-- My body is mine and yours is yours. Our own bodies are kind of the only real things which are truly ours. I get to see it and get to show it when I want to."

Fans took to social media

commenting on Eilish Instagram posts ranging from "Girl you are SO gorgeous" and my personal favorite being "Girl I love your confidence I'm so happy you're confident ily. Thanks to you I'm more confident with my body."

Eilish released a video clip while on her Where do we Go? Tour and on social media.

She vocalizes “So, whether I feel your stares, your disapproval, or your sigh of relief—if I lived by them, I’d never be able to move. Would you like me to be smaller? Weaker? Softer? Taller? Would you like me to be quiet? Do my shoulders provoke you? Does my chest? Am I my stomach, my hips?”

The ‘Bad Guy’ singer has set an intention with her platform to end body shame and stigma against female musicians and looking a certain way. She urges people not listening to her music because they like the way she looks or judge her off of her body type. Her music is about the music itself and what she puts into it, nothing else!
